Our Cover

As wildfires devastated more than 160,000 acres in Colorado, local and state agencies called on radio amateurs to help with disaster communications. The largest of the fires, the High Park Fire, alone claimed more than 87,000 acres. In the background photo, by David Johnston, KD8BQN, it rages out of control near Fort Collins. In the inset photo, taken by Rob Strieby, W0FT, David, KD8BQN, is communicating from the ICP for the High Park Fire to ARES members at the Poudre Park Fire Department, Poudre Canyon, Colorado. See page 73.
